

HOW IS COLUMBIA DOING?

This is a frequently asked question about the college. Often it is about aspects like enrollment or donations, but it is also relevant to ask how well we are accomplishing our mission and goals. Students, families, churches and the general public want to know whether we are effective educators and good stewards.

Columbia seeks to be open to the questions people may have about the college and we welcome people with questions or concerns to contact us. But, we also make public a number of items so that people can know how we are doing.

Below you will find information about Columbia both as an organization as well as a college.

On the organization side, we offer the following:

- The Annual General Meeting Report which provides a global report on how the college is doing as well as major decisions before us.
- Columbia's finances are audited annually by an external accounting firm and we have posted these statements for your information.

On the educational side, we have chosen a few representative indicators:

- Student's average Grade Point Average (GPA) which indicates what level of academic work is being produced by our students. In our system a GPA of 3.0 is equivalent to a B.
- Our degree completion rate, which shows the percentage of our students who come for a four year degree and in fact graduate.
- The post-graduation paths of our BA graduates; some will go on for other studies, some opt not to seek employment in their field; some do and are successful and some are still looking after a year.

If you would like more information about these or other "outcomes," please do not hesitate to contact Bryan Born in the President's office or Gil Dueck in the Academic Dean's office.
